Effective Leadership and Ministry in Today's Diverse Church

Many are the transformations that are redefining the U.S. Catholic experience in the 21st century. These demand a new generation of pastoral leaders and educators prepared to meet the needs of the diverse body of Christ in the reality of our now. We are a church of many cultural families and diversity is expressed in various other ways, reflecting the richness of who we are as children of God. This workshop is an opportunity to explore how Catholics have built community in the past, how we are doing it in the present, and together imagine what we need to do to secure the future of our faith communities. We will divide our time into three moments:

- 1) Building U.S. Catholicism amidst diversity yesterday.
- 2) Building U.S. Catholicism amidst today's diversity and growing awareness of the differences.
- 3) The value of intercultural competencies for pastoral planning.
